“ Il y a la loi, donc on a des droits, mais en
pratique non, on n'en
a pas.”

“There is the law, so we have rights, but in practice, no, we don't.”

Key issues identified

- There's a gap between the law and real-life experiences.
- Many rely on self-regulation (avoiding kissing in public, etc.).
- The law still does not grant automatic recognition of the co-parent.
- Families face humiliation and institutional discrimination.
- Rainbow families must constantly justify their decisions and how they parent.

What participants expect

- Legal and social frameworks that fully include rainbow families across all systems.
- Stronger consequences for homophobic rulings during parenthood recognition procedures.
- Clearer communication: who offers what services, and where can families get reliable information.
